

Fire safety in non-domestic premises

The HSE has written to tell BHSEA that new guidance is being published on this subject by HM Government to reflect new legislation which comes into force on 1 April 2006. The guidance which deals with fire safety in different types of premises is due to be published early next year and HSE Books will, along with other distributors, stock each item. The guidance in these publications will also be available for viewing online on a government web site in the future. No details are available at the time of writing. If, however, you wish to place an order for any of the publications above, please phone HSE on 01787 881165.
